DEDICATION

Henry Churchill King

Whose actual presence we have not been privileged to know, but the influence of whose steady vision and firm character we recognize in the stamp his college leaves

upon us.

HENRY CHURCHILL KING, A.B., B.D., A.M., D.D., LL.D., S.T.D., L.H.D.
President of Oberlin College, 1902-1927. Born 1858, Died 1934.

FOREWORD

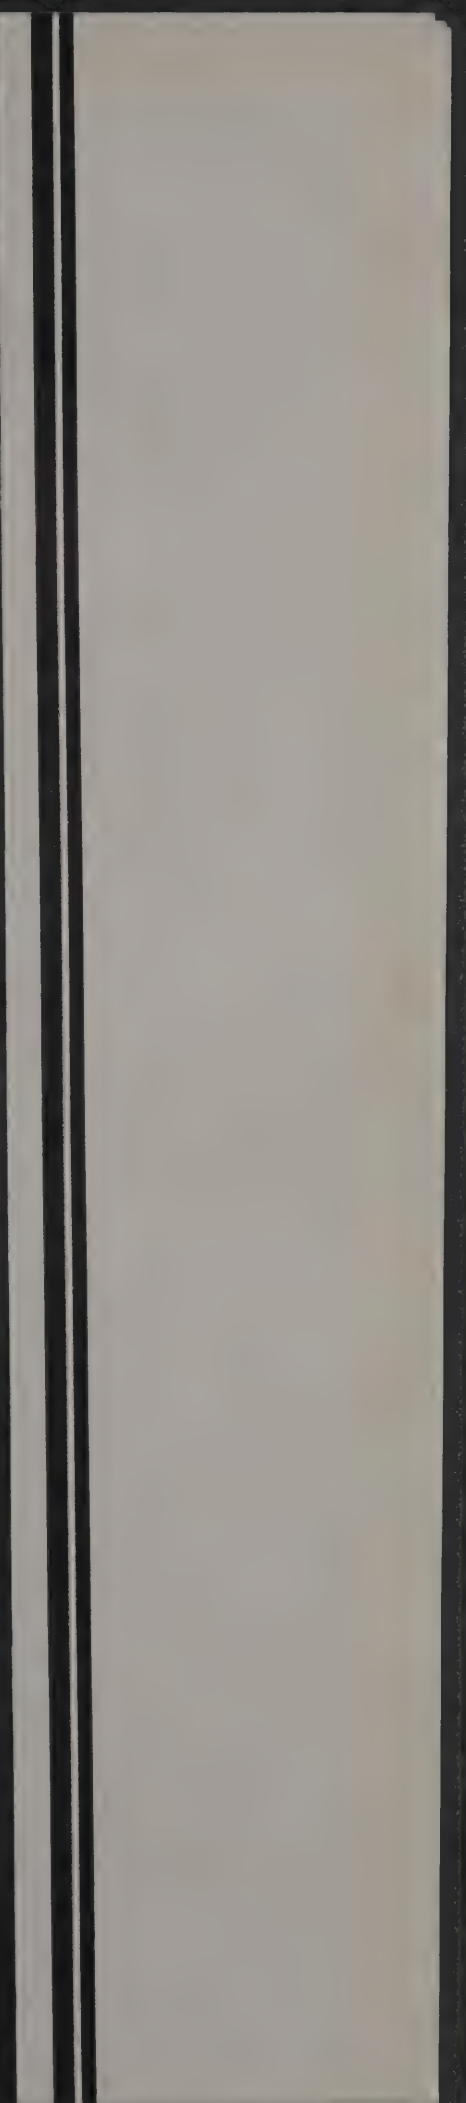

The Hi-O-Hi presents Oberlin College, its loves, labors, and aspirations, in a series of swiftly moving episodes. If these assist you in recreating the Oberlin of your college days, our aim has been achieved.

OBERLIN COLLEGE

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

April 12, 1934

To the 1935 Hi-O-Hi:

The year you are recording has been fraught, in the nation, with more hope of change, more fear of change, more actual change, than any other year since the founding of Oberlin.

That change has been reflected here in a marked increase in our concern about the problems of the economic and political order. That increase is the main characteristic of the year 1933-34 in Oberlin.

But you are recording persons rather than events; and we are grateful for the manifold record. Students mean more to faculty than students ever know. May the events you cannot control deal gently with you; and may the events you can increasingly control be for the common good of all!

Yours sincerely,

Ernest Hatch Wilkins

Faculty in the College of Arts and Sciences

The Oberlin College student has every right to be proud of the men and women who are his friends and teachers. The outside world has recognized the members of the faculty in many ways. A large proportion of them have received honorary degrees. Their published works are widely read, and some of them are accepted as text-books in leading colleges and universities. Many of them are actively engaged in work in national societies; several hold high offices in their respective associations. Only an Oberlin student, however, can fully appreciate them. For they are chosen not merely for scholastic attainments, but also for teaching ability and stimulating character. Each professor is deeply interested in his subject and fully capable of inspiring an equal interest in the minds of sympathetic students. The ratio of one faculty member to ten students makes possible more individualized teaching as well as valuable student-faculty contacts. Sunday afternoons and evenings find students at the homes of the professors for informal social gatherings.

Alumni Association

WHAT DOES AN ALUMNI ASSOCIATION DO?

On the Campus is one office the average student knows very little about. It is the Alumni Office. What is it here for? What does it do?

Just as the chrysalis becomes the butterfly, so the student eventually becomes the alumnus. Although he has graduated, he will not immediately, he should never, lose interest in the school that has for four critical years been his home. It is to this continuing interest that the Alumni Association ministers.

In its local branches, the Association provides opportunities for social contact, and should increasingly embrace other fields of interest—opportunities for further study, for participation in the political life of the community, for help towards placement of its members.

In its national organization the Association assists the College in such projects as the recruiting of students and the securing of financial aid, and has potentially a wealth of valuable and constructive suggestion to offer.

To the alumni, scattered all over the world, the Association brings the current Oberlin through the pages of the Alumni Magazine. It is not the remembered Oberlin of our own particular decade—1890, 1900, 1910, 1920 or 1930—but the Oberlin of today, that constitutes the living tie between us. The Magazine plays a significant part in the lives of alumni by making them continually conscious of this aspect of the Oberlin fellowship.

To you who are about to become alumni, therefore, the Alumni Association—and the Alumni Office—are more than an obscure place in the East Wing of the Men's Building where strange things are done—it is, potentially, your password back into the current Oberlin, good any time after June 19, 1934, until you set out for the land where passports shall be no more.

College Freshmen

This year the Freshmen have a job on their hands: they must prove that they are capable of becoming real college men and women without the benevolent, if stern, attentions of the Sophomore class. Some of the old traditions—Frosh hats and the tie-up—were still retained; but in general the Freshman has been emancipated. Without having undergone the course in Stoicism which their elders usually so assiduously administer, the Freshman must learn to face deans, outraged matrons, feminine rebuffs, consecutive bluebooks, and sloppy paths. We trust that by this time some of these lessons have been learned: that after the third dean call, you go in to see him every six weeks without invitation (unless you'd rather study); that by meeting her at the Varsity, her indignant house-mother may be avoided; that if the fifth girl refuses you, you can always call Ivy Ipswitch; that the hospital can always accommodate another student; that the only thing to do about the paths is to rent a row-boat or walk around the campus. It is now up to you to take Oberlin's knocks with a grin—until you learn how to avoid them—, and don't come to us with your broken toys and sore toes.

Conservatory Faculty

The Conservatory faculty, under the direction of Dr. Frank H. Shaw, uphold the standards which have made the Oberlin Conservatory famous since its founding. Many of its members are internationally known in their fields, several being accepted as authorities on music and its development. They have studied both in the music centers of the continent and under the masters of this country. Thus, in every way, they are capable of presenting to their students the finest instruction and training. In their teaching, the members of the faculty emphasize fine musicianship in every sense of the word, mastery of technique, and an appreciation and deep understanding of the finer works of the great composers. To offer additional inspiration and opportunity for study, the Conservatory has founded the Oberlin Artist Recital Course. The artists selected are only those who meet the strict requirements of a critical faculty. Professor Karl W. Gehrken, founder and present head of the Public School Music Department, is himself a fine musician, and is fully qualified to turn out excellently trained teachers who continue to uphold the high reputation of the department.

Pi Kappa Lambda

THETA CHAPTER—OHIO

Members of Pi Kappa Lambda, the national society for recognition of outstanding achievement in music, are elected in the latter part of May. For this reason the list below represents the members elected to this society in May, 1933. Members are chosen from the upper fourth of the graduating class whose excellence in performance or composition warrants this recognition.

"What were you saying? . . . Oh, nothing . . . Well, if you have anything to say, you'd better say it; we're getting near the Con . . . I was going to say that there's nothing more offensive than the Con on a warm, Spring day . . . Yeah, like old chops, the warmer the day, the more offensive . . . But it's rather fun, unscrambling it. Listen—everything from "Love is the Sweetest Thing" to a Bach fuge . . . I can hear the song, but which is the Bach? . . . Coming from the third window, an organ . . . All right, Helen, what opus is it; what key? . . . You must remember, my dear man, I'm only a Freshman. Ask me next year

. . . . Huh! By next year you'll be travelling on the concert stage Do you really think so, Dick?

. . . . Sure Oh, but you must remember, I'm only a Freshman. I think a girl ought to study here at least two or three years before she does concert work. Don't you? Oh, yes But you do think I should stick to my career, don't you? Yes, I suppose so I've often wondered, uh—lately, I mean. Maybe there are things more important than my career. You know—uh—friends and things? Yes, friendship is pretty important, too Yes, and then I don't know about the travelling. I sort of like to have some place you can call home. You know, flowers and things? I do think friendships can be more permanent when you aren't always going from one concert to another; don't you? Yeh, sure, what are you doing tonight? Silly! This is Wednesday, you know what I'm doing Well, can I meet you after Students? Oh, Dick, I'd love it if you would! All right, I'll be seeing you Goodbye, Dick. I'm going up and add to the din. If you listen, you'll hear me playing. I'll not tell you what,—now, I mean—but it won't be Bach I'll listen, Helen; so long."

The student council, official mouthpiece of the student body and organizations, has been concerned this year with revising the constitution and bringing campus organizations into a definite and recognized relationship with itself. In the same connection it has tried to give the conservatory a larger place in college functions—including, for example, another conservatory representative on the council. With such diversions as the Campus Mixer and penny toasters, which have been planned under the direction of the various classes, the council has attempted to bring the college together socially.

In an exciting election (to put it mildly), the student body chose for the organization's new president, one of its previous members. He has already launched the council on a career that promises to be one of the most progressive in its history.

Student Council

The Men's Senate, dealing directly with the supervision of men's activities on the campus, is made up of representatives elected by the men of the college and the conservatory.

This year the Senate has done much to simplify Frosh-Soph relations. The length of time that Freshmen were to wear caps was moved up from Spring vacation to just before exams. In place of the afternoon of hostilities and bonfire in the evening, symbolizing the burning of the caps, a campus flag rush was initiated over a period of two hours in the afternoon. In the evening a stag was held in the Men's Building, during which the two classes shook hands and spent the remainder of the evening in social activity.

During the year the Senate sponsored several all-college stags in order that the men of the college might become better acquainted. No casualties were reported.

The Men's Honor Committee seeks to do four things: It attempts to educate every Oberlin student in the mechanics and principles of the Honor System; it tries to help preserve that student sense of honesty and self respect which is at the bottom of the students' demand for the Honor System; it seeks to eliminate conditions in classrooms and laboratories which might be conducive to cheating; and, finally, it attempts to deal with those who violate the system in such a way as to preserve the interests both of the student who so offends and of the vast majority of honest Oberlin students who are wronged. Unless this vast majority is behind the work of the Committee, unless it stands firm in the belief that honesty in college work can only be imposed by students themselves, the Honor System is bound for failure.

Men's Honor Committee

Nineteen thirty-four completes the first quarter century of the existence of the Honor System on the Oberlin campus. The committee of women to whom the activities of administration have been delegated has conducted itself in the best interest of the system as it purposes to function.

The committee is intended to direct the attention of new students to this prized tradition of honor, for encouraging the continuance of an active interest, for removing conditions conducive to cheating, and lastly to serve as a judicial body when the need arises.

The continuance of the Honor system on the Oberlin campus is wholly dependent upon the students themselves, and the efforts of the committee to inculcate high standards of honesty and integrity into the student body have been successful.

The Women's Senate offers the opportunity for free discussion of all questions concerning the interests of the women on the campus.

The membership consists of the Executive Board of the Women's League, the presidents of the women's dormitories, and the representatives from the College and Conservatory classes.

This organization meets on the first Thursday of every month with the second vice-president of the League acting as chairman. At these meetings the problems of house government and recommendations for changes in legislation are considered. Any proposed changes are submitted for a final decision to the Joint Council, composed of the Executive Board of the Women's League and the Women's Board of the Faculty.

Women's Senate

The Executive Board of the Women's League brings representatives of women's activities together with the League officers in an effort to further the interests of the women on the campus, all of whom are automatically League members on entrance to college.

This year an investigation of the point system and minor revisions in women's regulations were made. Much of the year's interest was centered on the opening of Goodrich House which fulfilled the long standing need of an adequate center for women's activities. It provided the pleasant surroundings for the examination week teas and the series of Saturday afternoon teas given to provide money for furnishing the house more suitably.

The Men's Board of the Conservatory, comprising all registered Conservatory men, is the nucleus for the Men's social functions in that department. Cooperating with the Conservatory Women's Board, the executive committee of the Men's organization plans social events such as the Thanksgiving Party and the "Con" Prom. It is the aim of the Board to foster group spirit in the Conservatory where individualism is a primary element.

To judge from the success of all the activities they organized—notably the one and only Con Prom—their efforts at subduing the fiery temperament of the artist down to the tactful demeanor required of a dancing partner, were entirely successful. No more vigorous duty than this was encountered by these men, but they were called upon to act on matters of a more serious nature. These they handled with equal ability.

Conservatory Men's Board

The Conservatory Women's Board consists of the chairman of the Conservatory counselors, nine class officers, the Conservatory members of the Women's League Executive Board, and the representative from the Y. W. C. A. Holding frequent meetings with the Conservatory Men's Board, this group has assisted in the planning of numerous functions, social and otherwise, designed to encourage Conservatory students to participate in college activities. The "Con Prom" and the Thanksgiving party are among the social events which have been directed by the board this year.

In congruence with the Board's policy of uniting the interests of the Con women with those of the College, several of the so-called Con dormitories have now reserved places for college women, so that with the mingling of the two groups, more harmonious relations may be achieved.

The Shansi Student Committee is a real link between the Ohio campus and Oberlin-in-Shansi. During the fall of the year, Jane Smith, returned representative for 1931-1933, gave her message from Shansi in an assembly talk. Friday, Feb. 16, Oberlin celebrated its annual Shansi Day, with Dr. Paul Douglas, widely known for his work in the Orient, as the speaker. Frances Cade and Robbins Strong were announced as the recipients of the Shansi Fellowships for 1934-1936.

This year the committee was able to put into operation its plans for a general Shansi educational program, adding a new course on the Far East to the Political Science department, and sponsoring lectures by authorities on China and the Orient.

The annual breakfast was given by the committee during Commencement Week in honor of the new representatives. Thus was the Shansi chain of events concluded for the year.

The Oberlin Peace Society is not an organization for propaganda purposes. It attempts to study the problems of peace and of better international relations from every possible angle. The individual members, who attain to some firm conviction as a result of that study, carry on the actual peace action and propaganda, either in connection with the Oberlin Peace Society or with other college or outside organizations. Except in cases of practically complete unanimity the Society does not attempt to formulate definite programs, but it attempts to help and give hearings to every possible plan of action which might bring about a more peaceful world.

During the past year the Peace Society, in cooperation with the Public Affairs Club, brought many noted speakers to Oberlin in its furtherance of world peace, and also sponsored faculty-student debates on peace problems.

Now the Forensic Union is the last remaining stronghold of that sadly declining art of intelligent argument; an art which some of us who are insatiable optimists believe is returning or is bound to return, or something. When the return comes or came, or something, however, the Union will find or has found itself prepared to meet the new emergency, for it has retained the vestiges of its most ambitious years, a limited membership, trips, fifteen intercollegiate debates and twice the number of extension debates, and (to tell the truth) intelligent argument. According to the Forensic Union, an intelligent argument is when the constitutionality of the N. R. A. is proved, or proven, or something. An intelligent argument, on the other hand, is when some man (or woman) insists that the gentleman (or woman) from Oberlin, is looking at the question in debate at an abstruse angle.

Forensic Union

This year marks the end of the second successful year for the Oberlin Cosmopolitan Club, the membership of which is made up of fifty per cent foreign students and fifty per cent American. The meetings have not been aimed primarily at discussing political situations of foreign countries, but rather aim to come into closer contact with their cultures. Enjoyable evenings were spent taking imaginary trips to China, Japan, Germany, Denmark, Mexico, India, and France. The year culminated in the picturesque International Night, "Caravanzia," where people from the four corners of the earth gathered to pay homage to King Camaralzaman, whose court seemed to have stepped from the pages of the Arabian Nights.

More organizations like the Oberlin Cosmopolitan Club would go a long way toward establishing a feeling which would make forced limitations of armaments, secret leagues, and aeronautical good-will trips unnecessary.

Those students interested in the advantages of hearing and speaking French, regularly provided by Le Cercle Français, enjoyed an extremely profitable and interesting year. More initiative than ever before was shown by the members in conducting the program of club activities, which has included sings, informal games, and reports on current events in France. With the aid of members of the French Department, several plays were presented, among them "Le Client Peu Sérieux" and scenes from "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme." The year's activities culminated in the banquet held at the Oberlin Inn, after which the entire group adjourned to the Apollo to see the annual French film production, "Poil de Cerotte."

Don Wasson was chosen to head the activities of the club for the next year. He hopes to keep alive and increase the new spirit that has made the club an important addition to the French department and La Maison Francaise.

The Math Club tried this year to get the right angle on world problems. Economically, the club ushered in the new century of progress by solving the problem of "Send more gold money." Politically the club carefully considered the Boulder Dam project. Scientifically, the club spent an interesting evening in the astronomy laboratory. Mathematically, the club concentrated on higher mathematics, pedagogical, historical, geometrical, algebraical, and vectorial problems being considered. Socially, there was the annual Christmas party and the banquet.

Physiologically, the club as a whole chose a topic for each meeting and it was up to the individual to choose a particular phase of the subject for his talk. Thus, much research work was done on the nature of hair roots and the effect of teeth upon fingernails. Seriously, for those interested in mathematics, this club affords an excellent opportunity for the exchange of ideas.

Modern poets and the appreciation of modern poetry constituted Sigma Gamma's program for both semesters of the year. The reading of the poems was stressed, rather than a technical analysis. The members were forced into weighty and abstract expression of thoughts by extemporaneous speeches ranging in title from "Staring" to "Personality in Napkin Rings."

A Christmas party by candlelight gave everyone a chance to read her favorite Christmas poem. Social meetings for new members, a steak roast, and the Commencement banquet were outstanding social functions.

Altogether, the Sigma Gamma club enjoyed a very interesting and profitable year, both from the standpoint of literary value and social goodwill. The new officers have outlined even better plans for the year 1934-35, and the fall will see renewed activity among the members.

As it is a women's society, Phi Alpha Phi decided to take for this year's study the work of modern English and American women novelists. Each member has reviewed at least two books during the year. The programs have also included sketches of the lives of the authors whose books were reviewed, and the reading of some original verse.

Believing in the old adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," the members of Phi Alpha Phi enjoyed numerous social meetings among which were a steak roast in the fall for members and guests, a Christmas party, and a "rec" held with Aelioian. The climax of the year comes in the annual June Love Feast, at which the members who are still in school are given an opportunity to know better those alumnae who are in town and to meet others who come for Commencement activities and consider this an outstanding event.

The L. L. S. spotlight, this year, has been thrown on a number of the time's foremost women. Acquaintances made with such persons as Pavlowa, Le Galliene, and Dorothy Parker gave a colorful background for original composition. At intervals, the spotlight gave way to soft lights . . . on such evenings as guest meetings, when Freshmen are invited to see how the meetings are conducted, and later to try out for membership, and Alumnae night, when former members come to watch those of the present executing and improving on their ideas.

At the arrival of spring, the society celebrated by transferring its appreciation from literature to the out-of-doors and held meetings in the form of steak roasts at the Arboretum. The Inter-society Banquet and Love Feast finished up the year's activities with ample reference to the store of L. L. S. traditions and with enthusiasm for next year's plans.

With the idea of increasing their knowledge of contemporary events, the members of Aelioian devoted the first semester to reviews of current literary magazines and events. Feeling better acquainted with the world outside of Oberlin, they turned their attention the second semester to the contemporary novel, after a survey of the outstanding books of the year by Mrs. Lampson.

Not confined to the intellectual, the society enjoyed various social functions, including a bridge party, a "rec" night with Phi Alpha Phi, the inter-society banquet, and a tea given for some of the alumnae, where Aelioian as it is, was compared with Aelioian of the past.

The alumnae may be pleased to learn that Aelioian now has in its permanent possession the cup given to the society winning first place three consecutive times in the contest held at the inter-society banquet.

A dip in the lake, supper around the fire, and a long talk together of plans for the year started the cabinet off this fall.

This year saw a continuation of former activities: all-association meetings, social service, discussion groups, cooperation with the Vesper Committee, and some new features. The Y. W. has tried to relate its work to that of the World Student Christian Federation, and in doing this some joint projects were carried out with the Y.M. cabinet, especially the Annual Religious Conference.

More than ever the college year 1933-34 saw a heightened interest in the Y. W. program. The officers of the club under the direction of Mrs. Woody have been untiring in their efforts to plan attractive as well as worth-while meetings and projects.

"C'mon Eddie, kick it in the pants"—the fifty-fourth season and the largest membership in history . . . Ohio — New York — Vermont — Massachusetts — Pennsylvania — Ohio . . . "Waking the echoes" through the East with dulcet melody . . . Clifton Springs with its sulphur water—Rome, the State School, and the gentle idiots—Poughkeepsie, where every sorority at Vassar was phoned (without results)—White Plains and a straggler left in a five and ten—Christmas Concert from WGY—New York City on New Year's Eve—Twenty-four miles to Warren in twenty-five minutes—Home—Red mittens on the campus—Home Concert—Cleveland broadcast—. Only the Commencement reunion remains, and then for the fifty-fifth.

Good companionship—good music—good times—a lot of travel here and there about the country—long remembered experiences of this and that (some good, some not so good, maybe some a bit embarrassing)—an organization Oberlin can be proud of.

Men's Glee Club

The Women's Glee Club has its own glamour, aside from the individual charms of its members. The pre-holiday concert with its dance afterwards, is always an anticipated event—new voices—new soloists—new dresses—a new medley. Then, like the Men's Glee Club, this organization packed up for its trip east.

They departed from Pittsburgh covered with soot and glory, having completed a week's concert tour of Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. With the usual concerts, and reunions with alumni and former club members, the girls had an enjoyable and successful vacation. Returning to Oberlin, tired but happy, they looked forward to a radio broadcast from Cleveland, WTAM, in conjunction with the Men's Glee Club and Larry Gill's Orchestra, to be followed by a dance in the studios sponsored by the Cleveland Alumni Association.

"Quem Quaeritis?" — the Easter pageant written and directed by Jack Woodruff—consisted of a series of pictures and spectacular dances formed on the steps of a medieval cathedral. Quite different was the Association's next production, "The Light in the Dust," Dr. R. A. Jelliffe, playwright and director. Distinctly modern in its view of life, while possessed of a decidedly sombre note, this drama won immediate student approval.

Although the sophomore class, enacting J. M. Synge's "Riders to the Sea," won first honors in the inter-class one-act play contest—initiated in the fall, "The Locked Chest," by Masfield, J. M. Barrie's "Twelve Pound Look," and "East of Eden," by Christopher Morley, presented by the seniors, juniors, and freshmen, respectively, were capably handled. John L. Balderston's "Berkeley Square," closing the 1933 season, demonstrated the ability of a well-trained student cast in the more difficult drama.

This year marks the end of five successful years spent under the baton of Olaf C. Christiansen since the organization of the choir in September, 1929. It also marks an even higher plane of excellence than the choir has ever before achieved in the performance of the best sacred music. The concert season, with appearances in Cleveland, Elyria, Lorain, and Amherst, and in many Oberlin chapel services, was followed by the Home Concert, April 26. As a feature of Commencement week the alumni of the choir are joining the present choir in their first reunion concert, June 17.

The A Cappella choir of Oberlin College is one of the best known choirs in the country for the quality of tone and excellence of performance. Each year the number of try-outs for the organization far exceeds the number of places to be filled, the remainder filling up the various church choirs.

SERVATORY ORCHESTRA.

SEASON 1933—1934.

The Conservatory Orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Maurice Kessler, distinguished itself during the year in its numerous appearances before enthusiastic audiences in and out of Oberlin. Sponsored by the Musical Arts Society of Lorain, the orchestra played in concert early in January in that city. Later, the organization presented its annual concert in Warner Hall, thoroughly demonstrating the merit of its work. Two Chapel concerts have also had a large place in the program of the orchestra. Ability in accompaniment as well as in concert was amply shown by the part played by the organization in the production of Handel's Messiah, and in the nine senior recitals in which it participated.

The Freshman Men's Glee Club, selected by competitive try-outs, had an enjoyable season under direction of Donald Clark, and accomplished much in the way of preparation for future glee club work. The year's program, consisting of only a few serenades and a Spring concert in James Brand House, was not a full one, but provided an opportunity for the members to get together regularly for social as well as constructive hours. At the end of the season a "rec," held jointly with the women's organization, proved to be a most enjoyable affair, at least, that was the general consensus of opinion.

The opportunity that the Frosh Glee Club offers to prepare for the varsity organization is its own excuse for the club's existence, and the opportunity it affords to serenade the best friend without taking a razzing makes its continuance a necessity.

A sport for every girl! That is one of the aims of the Women's Athletic Association. This year two new sports were introduced into the department, badminton and bowling. The Peter Pindar Pease cabin was also moved out to Galpin Field for the exclusive use of the women. The two annual functions, the W.A.A. Dance and Yale-Princeton, were carried out with their usual success, the Yale-Princeton attracting many groups of high school students to Oberlin to witness this game, which has become almost a classic among the women of the College.

The past year has seen the W. A. A. become one of the strongest Women's organizations on the campus. Under the leadership of Dr. Moulton, the members have taken an interest and responsibility which is to be commended. The membership of the W. A. A. includes every girl who makes either one class first team or two class second teams.

Massed

Reaching new heights of excellence this year, the number of activities for all three bands, in and outside of Oberlin, was increased to include the new Campus Concert Series given on Sunday afternoons during May. Also, the Marching Band accompanied the football team to Cleveland for the Case game, the Women's Band played a concert at Hawthorne Junior High School in Lorain, and the Concert Band took part in the second Ohio Intercollegiate

Bands

Band Festival held at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea. On this last occasion, the adjudicator, Mr. Harold Bachmann of Chicago, said in his comment, "While your band is not large, I believe that as far as quality and performance are concerned, it is worthy of rank among the very fine university bands of the country." The picture shows the three College Bands massed for the combined numbers on the Eighth Annual Fall Concert in Finney Chapel.

During the fourth year of its life, the Olympian differed from previous years in containing more controversial material concerning political and social questions as well as fiction and poetry.

No other literary magazine of recent times on the Oberlin campus has existed successfully for four years. With its start, the Olympian bids fair to continue its success as long as the students of Oberlin continue to think and write well on current questions and to submit material of literary excellence.

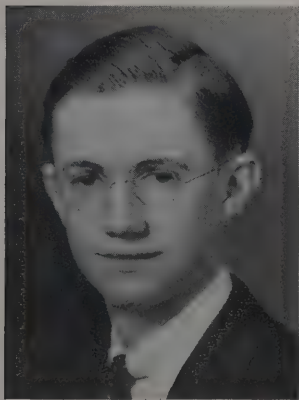

RUSSEL B. NYE
Editor

Olympian

Highlights of the year included the Ohio College Newspaper Association convention held in Oberlin December 8 and 9, at which Jack Raper and John W. Love of the Cleveland Press were the guest speakers; suspension of publication from February 6 to February 16 in order to reorganize the reportorial staff—a precedent in Review history; and the publication of a satire on the Radical Club's weekly, "Progress."

Editorially the Review attacked the present physical education for men, and effected the formation of a special Student Council committee to study the problem. A new note was also struck in the editorial column by running a series of personal sketches of men in the public eye, including Louis D. Brandeis, Barnard Baruch, and General Hugh S. Johnson.

In spite of a budget two thousand dollars less than the previous year, the 1935 Hi-O-Hi has endeavored to produce an annual which would wholly portray Oberlin and which should at the same time maintain the high standards of completeness and beauty set by former year-books. Working solely in black and white, we have tried, by unusual and perhaps radical changes, to make you forget the richness of color, top-heavy division pages and their accoutrements, and to give you in their place the intrinsic beauty found in line and the subtle blending of light and shade.

The staff has cooperated to the fullest extent, both in the routine of the actual work and in ideas for lay-out and design. Beginning last spring and continuing through the middle of April, 1934, everyone has contributed his or her share to the completion of the book.

In brief then, we have tried to achieve a Hi-O-Hi complete in its record of Oberlin life during the past year, and one that in design and beauty will take its place among the best.

Working under the plan inaugurated in the spring of 1931, these underclassmen have gained valuable experience in annual work, experience which will fit them for positions on next year's and future staffs of the Hi-O-Hi. From these assistants will the nucleus of the 1936 staff be built, thus assuring the Hi-O-Hi's successful continuance in capable hands.

With a total of thirteen lettermen back for the 1933 season, Coach Butler had high hopes of turning out a better than average team. But with Berry, star end, declared ineligible because of grades, and with Baetz and Kennedy out for the season with injuries incurred just after the season got under way, the team was considerably weakened.

A one-word summary of this year's football season would be "even." Four games were won; four were lost . . . fifty-eight points for and fifty-eight against. The squad started off with two victories, and expectations were high for the best season in Oberlin's football history for some years. But "as usual," the flare died and the season ended as another average one. Credit is due Captain Ruth's drive, and Captain-elect Woodward has this example to follow. It might be possible that if the send-off given the squad before the Rochester game were given all the year, Oberlin would have a championship team.

OBERLIN 12 — ROCHESTER 0

Back to the "days of '76!" Oberlin's football squad plus the old time "spirit" traveled to Rochester and won, 12 to 0. The games showed just what the squad had and what it needed—and was, on the whole, very satisfactory. One thing must not be overlooked; that is the spectacular send-off given the team by hundreds of students who flooded the intersection of Main and College streets.

OBERLIN 21 — KENYON 0

Displaying their wares before the home crowd for the first time the Yoemen pushed Kenyon over the field for a 21 to 0 score. The first half was slow, Oberlin scoring two points on a safety in the first few minutes. However, the team picked up in the second half and scored one touchdown in the third quarter. In the last period, with almost a complete new team, two more touchdowns were scored against the tired Kenyon team.

CASE 33 — OBERLIN 6

According to dopesters, Case was to walk all over Oberlin. A glance at the score might lead some to believe that they did. No walking was done until the third quarter, however, for up to that time, the game was even. After the initial "break" which led to the first Case touchdown, there was little hope for the Yoemen, save when Cooper caught that pass in the third quarter and fell over the line as he was tackled. Two plays later, Brickley's punt was run back for another Case touchdown. After that . . .

As an end run, a total failure.

WOOSTER 6 — OBERLIN 0

At Wooster the team encountered its first real competition. The Scots had a full team of lettermen back, and their experience helped. Oberlin was thrown on the defensive in the first few minutes and before they settled down, Wooster scored. From then on the battle was even, with Pfaff's punting the bright spot. In the last few minutes Oberlin had the ball within Wooster's five yard line, but Wooster held until the end.

"Dick" Hall, center

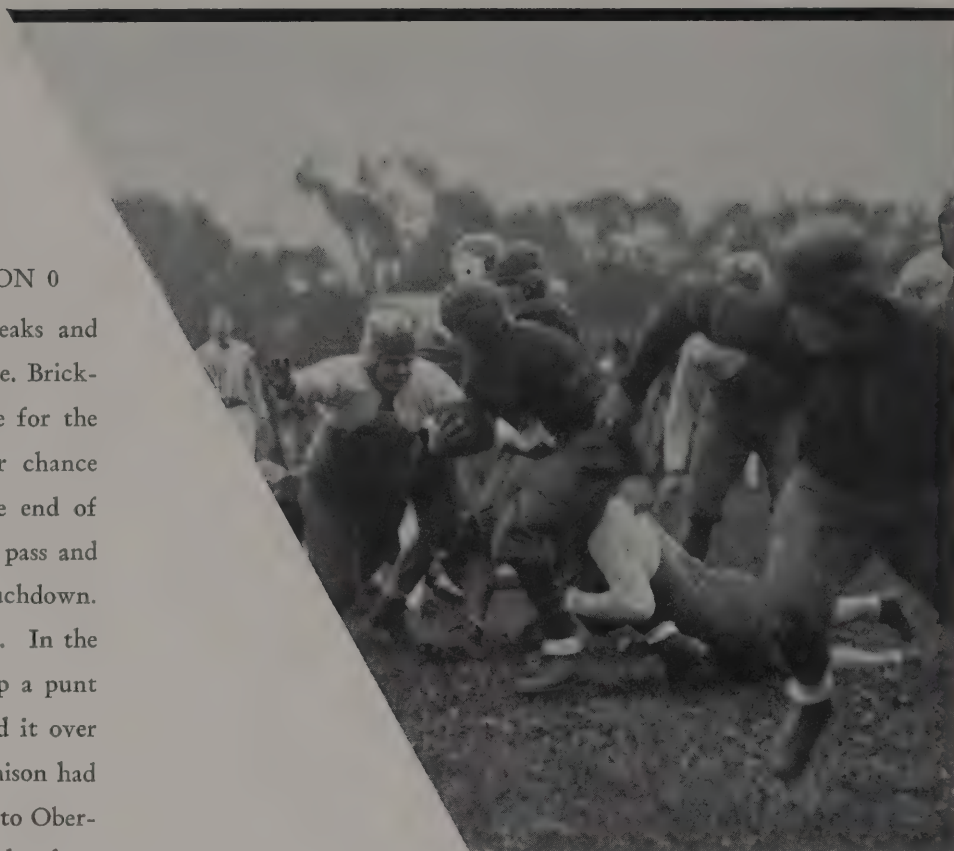

"Rog" Brown, center

OBERLIN 13 — DENISON 0

Oberlin played for the breaks and got them at Denison's expense. Brickley's punting made it possible for the team to sit back until their chance came. Two plays before the end of the half, Smith intercepted a pass and ran thirty yards for a touchdown. Brickley dropkicked the point. In the third quarter, Hinz picked up a punt blocked by Brown and carried it over for the other six points. Denison had a total of thirteen first downs to Oberlin's two, but they had only four chances inside the twenty yard line . . . once on the eight.

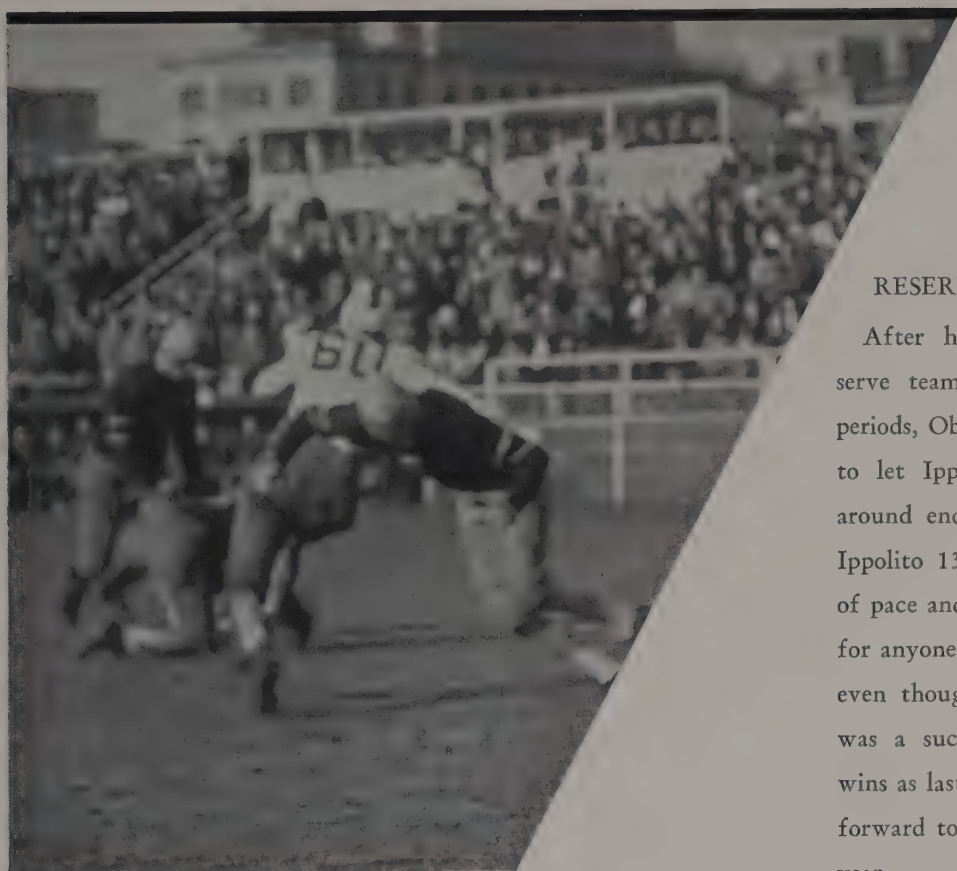

Baetz hits the

RESERVE 13 — OBERLIN 0

After holding the ambitious Reserve team to a standstill for two periods, Oberlin weakened just enough to let Ippolito score on short runs around end. And it was practically Ippolito 13 — Oberlin 0, his change of pace and shifty action being plenty for anyone to take care of. However, even though Oberlin lost, the season was a success, with twice as many wins as last season, and the team looks forward to an even better season next year.

town Y, Oberlin defeated Kenyon and Hiram, their first opponents, early in January. The second win was due to last minute tallies by Russ Lampson. Then, the Crimson and Gold men met four straight defeats from Denison, Wooster, Case, and Reserve. Only a bad break for Oberlin in the final seconds lost the Case contest. Picking up a bit, Oberlin spanked Muskingum the following week, with Cameron sinking his beautiful long shots. After the unsuccessful eastern trip, in which Oberlin was the guest of Allegheny, Hobart, and Rochester, the team returned home and proceeded to show Toledo some real team play. After this game, the last win of the year, the basketekers fell before Wesleyan, Akron U, and the Alumni in the Crip Gray game.

BIG SIX

For the first time in five years Oberlin was defeated in the Ohio Conference Track Meet. Against a field of sixteen teams Oberlin ended in seventh place. Denison was first with a total of forty points, followed by Wooster with thirty-two, and these were trailed by Akron, Heidelberg, Toledo, and Mount Union before Oberlin with her fifteen and one-half points staggered in.

Two records were broken; one in the low hurdles, the other in the pole vault. Allen of Mount Union broke a record which he held jointly with Spangler of Oberlin by vaulting twelve feet eight inches, two inches better than the old mark. Probably the most spectacular event was that won by Bacon of Denison lowering the record in the low hurdles to twenty-three and five-tenths seconds, after finishing first in the highs but being disqualified for knocking over four hurdles.

Forced to open the season without their leader, Clare Hall, ace sprinter, the Oberlin trackmen, looking weak in all except distance events, lost to both B.-W. and Akron. After taking a trouncing from the boys of Wesleyan, they won 10 out of 15 first places in competition with Case, winning by 34 points — their first victory. The upset which followed the next week, with Reserve getting the 10 out of 15 firsts, found the weight men collapsing in the face of Reserve opposition. The shortage of individual stars showed up in the meet with Wooster, where Oberlin lost, 85 1-3 to 45 2-3. Funk starred in the broad-jump, equalling last year's Bix Six record. In this meet, the last of the season, Wooster came from behind in both the 440 and 880 to take firsts.

J. Reid, J. Naef, D. Pett, M. Kiracofe.

Oberlin's tennis team successfully opened the season by defeating the Otterbein aggregation, 7-0. Dick Riley, playing number one, was in excellent form, and showed much promise for the year. The next week, Oberlin came through again, defeating Kenyon in an easy match, 6-2. Following up the first two victories, Oberlin trounced Wooster to the tune of 6-1, with the squad continuing to show improvement. But with the removal of Riley from the lineup, due to sickness, the team faced stiffer competition on the Michigan trip, and bowed to Ypsilanti, Kalamazoo, and Michigan State. Upon returning to native soil, however, the Yoemen again trounced Wooster, 8-1. Having kept their Ohio Conference slate clean through another victory over Kenyon, 7-0, the Crimson and Gold netters lost by one point to a top-notch Case team under the leadership of Smigel.

"Tige" Lightner,
Captain

On the diamond, Oberlin started the season at home by defeating Ashland to the tune of 8-2, as a result of Bob Snyder's four-hit pitching. Toledo was also taken by a score of 3-1, with more effective pitching by Snyder. On the Michigan trip, Oberlin was not up to "par" and dropped one game to Michigan State, 8-13, and one to Hillsdale, 1-7, as a result of too many errors, but on the return trip, they defeated Toledo again, 7-5, in a close game of timely hitting. The next two games Oberlin dropped — the first to Ashland by a 6-10 score; the second to Ypsilanti, 2-7, the pitching staff seeming very ineffective against the slugging of these two teams. However, they came back and wound up the season with an 8-6 win over Kent State. Here Oberlin showed up like a group of Pro's, with good all-around batting, fielding, and pitching.

Baseball

K. McCloskey, J. Allensworth, W. Lutterman, L. Ward.

The season for the Oberlin club-swingers last year saw Ken McCloskey the sole veteran of previous contests returning. Around him was built a team of men with very little competitive experience—a team which was thrust on its mettle and which came through well. The spring was the worst for golf of any in twenty years and, as a consequence of the heavy rains, soggy fairways and greens prevented any early practice, the men playing their first three matches without having swung a club in practice. The only match in which the Crimson and Gold looked seriously weaker than their opponent was the one with Ashland, in which the star performance of two of the aces of this district, Lutz and Paxton, proved too much for Oberlin. The fact that the season finished with a percentage of .500, demonstrates that the new men on the team were able to surmount significant difficulties to make a really creditable showing. Oberlin losses numbered one each to Kenyon, Ashland, and Wooster; her victories, one over Kenyon and two over Mount Union.

Second row:

Coach Keller, W. Murray, W. Kelley, W. Heller, W. Fisher, R. Brown, R. Weber, Mr. Savage.

First:

H. Brann, C. Gould, A. Brown, A. Tucker.

Wade Fisher,
Captain

The outstanding leaders in the Aquatic competition this year were Captain Wade Fisher, consistently superior in the dashes, Warren Kelley, sophomore breast-stroke ace, and Arthur Brown whose diving was a highlight of the season. These men were regularly in the lists of winners. The fact that the team defeated Western Reserve, 50-25, Oberlin's first swimming victory in two years, quite overshadows the four defeats suffered, two each at the hands of Wooster and Case. In the Reserve meet, the most serious competition was in the dashes, where Oberlin did not show up in regular performance ability. The splendid work of Art Brown and Bill Murray, who tied as high point men in this meet with eight points apiece, was responsible in a large measure for the victory.

First:

D. Bumpus, A. Hull, C. Gould, E. Pye, W. Pye, Mr. Willbond.

Playing a five-game schedule this season, Oberlin won two games, lost two and tied one, thus marking up .500. Early in November, the boys journeyed to Wooster, in their first year of soccer competition. Wooster showed fine spirit in their new sport and tied Oberlin, 2-2. Among the Oberlin sophomores to break into the ranks in support of Captain Ed Pye, Al Koch, goalie, rendered significant service all season. The next week saw the boys from Wooster come to Oberlin and win, 3-0, amidst sleet, slush and snow. The Oberlin men came through in the two-game series with Ohio State, defeating them here on Nov. 15, and there on Nov. 18. Captain-elect Russ Sperry played well in the former, while in the latter game, Hal Wilbur garnered all three goals to bank the down-staters. In the season's last game, the Illinois team pushed Oberlin into four over-time periods, winning 3-2.

First:

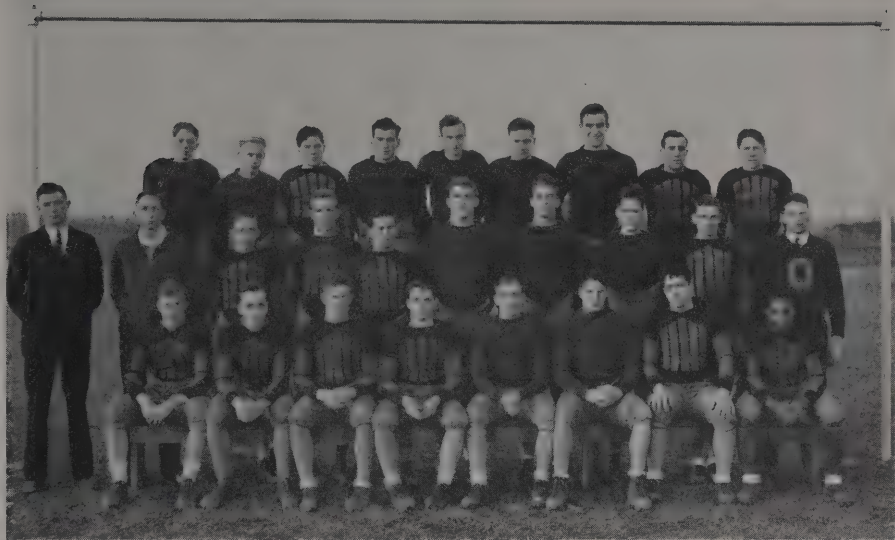

Mr. Savage, M. Schwinn, A. Dublo, G. Manlove, Coach Kinsey.

A. Dublo,
Captain

Oberlin's cross-countrymen suffered this year, just as did the track team — winning only two out of six meets. The Wooster engagement early in October ended with Knutsen, ace distance man on the opposition, breaking the existing record for the 4.6 mile course. Cady, also of Wooster, placed second, with George Manlove of Oberlin placing third. Despite an injured knee in the later meets, he performed well all season. The first victory was over Marietta, Oberlin winning the first five places, Jorgensen, Manlove and Captain Dublo tying for first. The harriers of Detroit City College were victors in a dual meet there. The following week, the Kinseymen took six of the first ten places to defeat Wesleyan and Muskingum in the triangular meet here, Heck-of-Wesleyan's first, notwithstanding. A strange course contributed to our defeat by Denison the next week-end. After five straight victories in Ohio Conference Cross-Country, Oberlin was, this year, only able to place third to Wooster's first and Denison's second.

Intramurals

J. Herbert Nichols
Director of Intramural Athletics

Each year sees an ever growing interest in the Intramural program, and this year has proved no exception. The great variety of sports offered, and the emphasis placed upon enjoyable exercise rather than upon the necessity of winning, are factors which contribute immeasurably to the popularity of the Intramural division of the college athletic program.

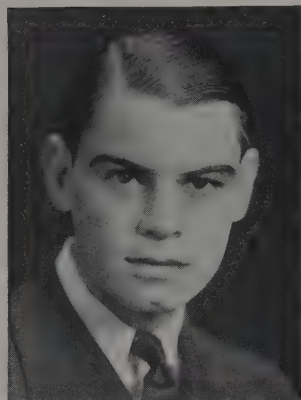

The past year saw more than ninety per cent of the men take in one or more of the twenty-three activities represented. No coercion of any sort was used, these men taking part in any sport that appealed to them, thus deriving the most benefit from it.

With the beginning of the present Intramural organizations in 1928, the competitive managerial plan was instituted, with an unlimited number of freshman and sophomore candidates trying out for managerships. From the sophomore candidates three junior managers are chosen; and from the three junior managers two Seniors are selected. In this way a highly efficient organization is maintained, fully capable of handling the large number of participants in the various sports.

This year's sixth annual Intramural festival filled the Men's Gymnasium to capacity, with hundreds more unable to be accommodated. A program com-

The success of the festival is ample proof of the continued increasing popularity of the Intramural organization. Under the guidance of Dr. Herbert Nichols, intramural sports have gained new momentum, and the slogan of the department that every man play the sport to his liking has been well carried out.

The Sports Board, the governing group of Women's Athletics, is composed of the heads of each sport under the supervision of three seasonal managers. Through conferences with the coaches, schedules are arranged, and interest maintained by means of attractive posters. The Board is in charge of hockey, golf, tennis, archery, basketball, tap dancing, natural dancing, swimming, badminton, bowling, volleyball, and baseball.

The Annual Winter Sports Banquet, sponsored by the seasonal manager, is the climax of the Winter Sports season. This year the "Three Little Pigs" added to the merriment of over one hundred women who attended.

Sports Board

The Women's O. C. Club is an active athletic organization on the campus. Membership eligibility is secured after the Sophomore year, and students are chosen for qualities of leadership, sportsmanship, cooperation and active interest in sports. Each candidate must also have five hundred points in four different sports and have played on one all-star team.

The club carries on social and business meetings, works on projects, manages the Frosh-Soph tie-up every fall, and cooperates with the W.A.A. organization in any of its undertakings.

The Yale Bulldogs, led by their able captain, Mary BenDure, who has been a member of the Yale-Princeton teams for three years, and who captained the Senior basketball team—the champions of the inter-class tournament—made Princeton fight for their victory. Although Yale lost this year to Princeton—by a close score—it has the past record of two victories for every defeat. The clean-cut, flashy passing of the forwards was responsible for many points scored on short, accurate shots, while the close-sticking guards kept the other team from piling up more baskets.

Princeton's captain, Marcellia Vaughan, is also a veteran of three years standing in the Yale-Princeton games, and like Miss BenDure, was captain of her class basketball team. Under her leadership, Princeton's team for the first time in four years, managed to jump ahead in the last quarter; this spurt brought them, by a close margin, their upsetting victory. The game initiated five new players, most of whom will be heard from in future years. The forwards depended upon long shots for their points, and the guards of both teams outplayed their respective forwards—small wonder it was a close, exciting game!

In a house containing some sixty-four members, one would think that there is a great deal of room for dissension, disagreement, and discord. The Quad does not claim to be "one big happy family" most certainly, but it must be admitted that, considering the varying interests and ages of the Quadsters, the group gets along surprisingly well. If there is nothing else to kick about, they can always criticize the food!

Two recs and a formal comprise the social calendar of the year, if that is necessary to mention. The really outstanding event of the season in the past did not materialize this year, for some reason—the annual basketball tournament between the college men and the theologists! The latter were probably too busy editing "Theologia."

Quadrangle

To Oberlin in June, 1933, trekked thousands of alumni. From remote corners of the world they came, gathered together in commemoration of their college's Centennial year. In the shade of century-old elms, the past and the present student body met and were one, bringing the renewal of old friendships and the making of new ones. With the close of the week's celebration, these same thousands departed to their homes, carrying with them the knowledge that in its hundred years, Oberlin, progressing, has retained the high standards, the charm, and the tradition dear to every Oberlin graduate.

like a smart club!

Think of the Higbee Company as your own private club! Meet your friends in the Tenth Floor Lounge. Have luncheon in the Silver Grille . . . Louis Rich and his orchestra play every day, you know.

FAMOUS NAMES!

Our list of famous makers represented here reads like a Who's Who. Discriminating collegiennes appreciate Van Raalte hosiery, gloves and underwear, Mangone coats, Delman and Matrix shoes.

AND FOR MEN!

Famous names again! College men know Kuppenheimer Good Clothes, Dobbs hats, Nettleton shoes and Wheary luggage. Don't forget The Book Shop, Christine Flower Shop . . . nor Metzger's groceries to take back to school for midnight feasts! See you soon!

College Trained Secretaries

*M*ORE and more the better class of positions are calling for secretaries who in addition to their college training have specialized training in business and secretarial work.

Scores of college graduates have taken this training in The Oberlin School of Commerce, and are today holding responsible positions with large concerns where there is opportunity for development, promotion and substantial financial reward.

Only students of college grade are admitted to our classes. Only experienced, well-trained teachers are in charge of the classes.

Special arrangements are also made for those college students who wish to take typing only, during their college course.
